Dear Ms. Henney,

We'd like to urge you to ban immediately the uses of growth-promoting antibiotics in animals. They are used in human medicine and should not be pumped into the meat we consume. It's bad enough that antibiotics have been over-prescribed by the medical profession causing people to lose their protection needed when illness strikes. We certainly don't need more antibiotics in our bodies without our permission.

Please follow the European Unions lead and do the right thing for the USA.

We'd appreciate knowing your position on this matter.

Thank you.

Sincerely yours,

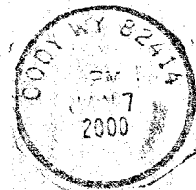

Eileen B. Haberstroh
